

Pure beef casings

Superior sausages demand excellent casings

As an experienced, globally trusted specialist in sausage casings of natural origin, CTH can deliver products perfectly tailored to your individual specifications. We offer a complete range of beef casings of the finest South-American quality. These wide, large-caliber casings are versatile, traditionally used for both dry and cooked sausage like Mettwurst, Kochwurst, Cooked Sausage Ring, blood sausage, and liver sausage.

Reliable natural South-American casings

With CTH's premium beef casings, you can improve the look, bite, and flavor of your sausage, keeping customers coming back for more. These versatile casings can be used with a wide range of sausage types: whatever your need and specifications are, we can help you meet them.

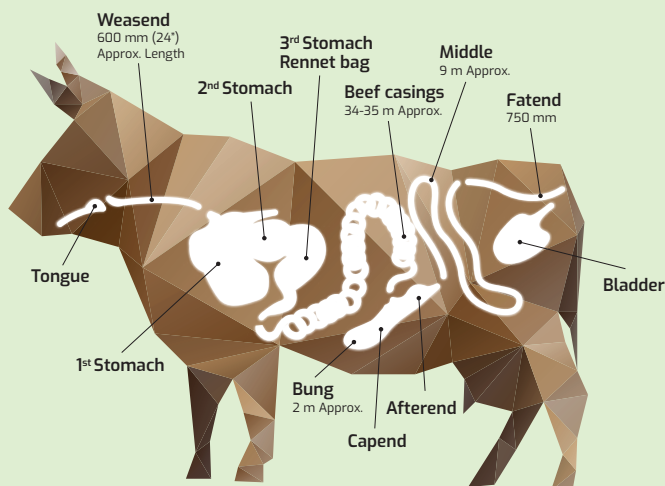

The strictest quality guidelines

At CTH, we make sure that our beef casings are derived only from healthy animals, inspected and approved for human consumption. Our beef casings are derived from the intestinal tract of farmed oxen from BSE-free countries. We select our casings at our own production site, where our skilled employees subject them to strict quality guidelines and in compliance with HACCP, BRC, and IFS quality standards.

Clean, fresh, and natural

Today, consumers prefer natural products, free from artificial chemicals: it strengthens their confidence that what they're eating or serving their families and friends is totally safe. With only salt added, the beef casings we deliver are free from all chemicals, foreign elements, mucosa, and any other parts of the intestinal tract. They are clean and fresh, with a natural color and odor.

Tailored to your production process

Dedicated to turnkey solutions, we provide casings that can be efficiently integrated into your production and production line. We also package our casings the way you want us to, whether in big barrels or smaller units, dry-salted or in brine.
